

The spirit of giving

The Community Foundation of Johnson County
2013 Annual Report to the Community

Our Mission

Serve Johnson County by growing endowments and distributing funds to build a greater community

Our Vision

Be the preferred endowment vehicle for Johnson County

Spirit of Giving by the numbers: Growing to meet our future

Your support and generous investment demonstrate the spirit of giving is alive and well in our community. Since founding in 2000, the Community Foundation has awarded more than $5.8 million in grants, and delivered service to 143 charitable giving and endowed funds at a cost of only 1.28 percent to serve the greater community good.

The Community Foundation of Johnson County is a catalyst to build a stronger community through philanthropy, raising nearly $15 million in endowed assets and nearly $6 million in bequests; and an estimated $603,000 in sponsor support and 32,460 volunteer service hours to support philanthropic efforts. Thank you for strengthening endowments for the greater community good.

For Good . . . For Ever.

From the President

The spirit of giving is alive and well in our community. As you review this year's annual report, you will see it: individuals, nonprofit organizations and businesses strengthening our community through their generous support of an array of funds and causes. The Community Foundation of Johnson County (CFJC) serves the people of Johnson County by building an endowment for the greater community good.

Opportunities to invest in our community exist everywhere and all the time through the Community Foundation. In these pages you will see ways to improve the lives of our neighbors, support the arts, and enhance our community. You may choose to honor the memory of a loved one. You may give to support specific organizations or general areas of concern.

Since founding in 2001, CFJC has experienced remarkable growth, while continuing to build goodwill and expanding its reputation as a reliable, trustworthy partner with the ability to manage resources and award and distribute funds to benefit others. Our growing grant awards and endowment funds signify CFJC is fulfilling its mission to serve the people of Johnson County, making strategic grants in response to unmet community needs that help strengthen our Johnson County community.

Your Community Foundation is dedicated to improving the quality of life across a broad spectrum of needs and opportunities. We are fortunate to serve those who have made commitments in support of our community, and to partner with passionate individuals who are interested in continuing the spirit of giving . . .
For Good . . . For Ever.

New members join CFJC Board of Directors

The Community Foundation of Johnson County (CFJC) is pleased to announce the addition of three new board members. New members, who will serve three-year terms, are Bart Floyd, Great Western Bank, and Sharon Oglesby, Iowa City community volunteer.

We also express our most sincere appreciation for the service of outgoing board members Ross DeValois, MidAmerica Securities Management Co.; Bill Furlong, attorney, and Christine Scheetz, United Way of Johnson and Washington Counties, whose terms ended June 30, 2013.

“We are so grateful for the support we received. It is a testament to the community’s support for creative endeavors and represents a true spirit of giving.”

ANDREW SHERBURNE, FILMSCENE CO-FOUNDER

Film fans celebrate new cinema in downtown

After nearly a 10-year absence the silver screen shines again in downtown Iowa City. Following two years of hard work and fundraising, the dream of founders Andrew Sherburne and Andy Brodie is now a reality. FilmScene, an intimate 70-seat, single screen cinema, flipped the switch “on” with the premier show, a stirring performance by Alloy Orchestra of a live score to MGM’s “He Who Gets Slapped.”

This summer, movie fans backed the entrepreneurs pledging their support in a month-long, highly-successful crowdfunding campaign that added needed funds, including an “over the top” grant from the Community Foundation of Johnson County, to surpass their fundraising goal.

Contributions given were used to complete construction on the cinema at FilmScene’s space at 118 E. College St., named Scene 1, and to create an operating reserve to support creative programming. In addition to the cinema, FilmScene features a cafe and rooftop patio and seating where audience members discuss films.

The opening of the new theater followed the signing of a partnership with the Bijou, a 41-year-old, student-run theater located in the Iowa Memorial Union on the University of Iowa campus. Sherburne and Brodie, who was the Bijou former executive director from 2004 to 2007, merged FilmScene with the Bijou’s shared desire to screen independent, art house, foreign and classic cinema.

Andrew Sherburne and Andy Brodie at FilmScene’s premier: “He Who Gets Slapped” by MGM.

FilmScene, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit cinema arts organization, governed by a 19-member board of directors, will work collaboratively on programming, marketing and operations with the 25-member Bijou Film Board, composed of students and community members.

Scene 1 plans to screen to audiences a variety of new releases and classic films year-round. The former Bijou space in the IMU will be used by the Campus Activities Board to screen mainstream films. Sherburne says, “We are so grateful for the support we received. It is a testament to the community’s support for creative endeavors and represents a true spirit of giving.” With such a positive response from fans, audiences are bound to grow making FilmScene’s new entertainment venue a destination stop in downtown Iowa City.

Bright Smiles nurtures learning

Students in the Iowa City Community School District (ICCSA) have better opportunities than ever for a healthy start and a bright smile.

Bright Smiles is the dental program available through Healthy Kids Community Care school-based clinics. Susie Poulton, RN, MSN, Director of Health and Student Services, coordinates staff and clinics to ensure all students' health needs are met so they can attend school ready to learn. "Healthy children are optimal learners."

She says the vast majority of kids come to school ready to learn. Another portion may not have all the resources they'd like available, and then there's another group with so many barriers that they're at a distinct disadvantage to learn.

While the Midwest is somewhat sheltered from unemployment and poverty experienced in large urban centers, the Great Recession has impacted Johnson County families. Of the 5,000 families served by the 133-square mile school district, nearly 400 students have living arrangements other than their own home or apartment. Nearly a third of district families live in poverty.

Dental care is a basic need that's often postponed, especially during a financial crisis. Poulton says approximately 1 percent of the district's student population receive Bright Smiles dental services each year. The children served are new to the district or they haven't lived in a location long enough to establish residency. Sometimes insurance coverage isn't available where parents work, they don't qualify for Hawk-I insurance or perhaps they just purchase catastrophic insurance.

Poulton says all children in a family can receive services through the clinic if they are uninsured, underinsured or have barriers to accessing health care. Last year, Bright Smiles covered $27,000 in preventative dental care, dental treatment and restorative dental care services for children, infants to age 21, through the University of Iowa College of Dentistry. She adds very often parents pay a portion of the cost of the initial visit.

Initially, Dr. Marguerite Oetting, pediatric physician at University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, volunteered medical services for Healthy Kids Clinics. Now, UIHC donates her services one day a week. A Pediatric Nurse Practitioner from the University of Iowa College of Nursing and UIHC Child Psychiatrist also provide medical services, and the clinic employs a full-time, bilingual coordinator. Clinics are held at Northwest, South East Junior High schools on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and once a month a mobile clinic visits City and West High schools.

ICCSA programs such as family resource centers, school health clinics, and federal Safe Schools-Healthy Students grants are some of the tools the district uses to reach out to families in need of assistance.

"It's preventative medicine," Poulton says of the Bright Smiles clinics. "Parents tell us they are very, very grateful. And they tell us they are welcomed and accepted in our district and appreciate being treated with respect.

"We're very fortunate. The Iowa City Community School District has great resources and our staff works as a team to help each youngster be ready to learn."

‘Pick a Better Snack’ changes lives

Registered dietitian and nutrition educators work closely with school food service staff and parents to communicate Pick a Better Snack curriculum. Parents (and guardians) report positive feedback: 80 percent report their child eats more fruits and vegetables and nearly 70 percent report their child encouraged them to purchase more fruits and vegetables.

3,500 students in 22 elementary schools in Iowa City Community, Lone Tree and Clear Creek Amana districts are learning about food and how to live a healthy life.

“Pick a Better Snack” lessons are widespread. Students have the opportunity to “be brave” and try new fruits and vegetables and are more likely to eat produce from the lunch line. As a result, youngsters are making better food choices and have more energy for school and the activities they enjoy. Additionally, organizers find the youngsters take the lessons home to share information with family members, helping them build better health habits. The 2010 Community Needs Assessment identified only 6 percent of Johnson county youth consume the daily recommended five servings of fruits and vegetables.

Iowa State University Extension and Outreach nutrition and health specialist Rachel Wall, MS, RD, LD, said the 10-year old program started with two schools. The curriculum centers on goals to empower kids to make healthy choices:

- “Be Brave” and try new foods
- My Plate
- “All-the-time” foods versus “sometimes” foods

- Drink water and low-fat dairy products versus sugar-sweetened beverages
- Be physically active with 60 minutes of daily activity

Gene Mohling, ISU Region 15 Education Extension director oversees the program, and Wall ensures the program content is research-based. Two Johnson County Extension nutrition educators, Melissa Stahl and Carol Larsen, work with more than 150 teachers to make the program successful. Wall says “Pick a Better Snack” emphasizes the importance of a healthy diet and 60-minutes of daily exercise. “You can’t have one without the other.”

The program also provides events outside the classroom with parents, including the “Get Moving” for Healthy Kids race, family fitness nights at local schools and activities at the Iowa Children’s Museum. Wall says, “We want parents to know what we’re doing and talking about with their children. Getting kids to try as many fruits and vegetables as possible is a win in our book. “We have great feedback. Kids tell us that eating healthy gives them energy to learn and play their favorite sports. One student told us she wanted to be a ‘Pick a Better Snack’ lady when she grew up.”

‘Gifts of Grain’ benefit community, producers

The Community Foundation of Johnson County now offers a new way for producers and grain farmers, who have fed the world, to help their communities. A “Gift of Grain” is a unique way to make a charitable gift and invest in the future while achieving maximum tax savings.

Donating grain to the Community Foundation can be used to start an endowed fund in the name of your family, for a specific nonprofit organization that may be important to your family or support for overall charitable causes. Contributing grain commodity allows producers and farmers the ability to realize production costs as deductible as a farm business expense while qualifying for a federal tax deduction and a 25 percent Endow Iowa Tax Credit when a donation is made through Community Foundation.

Farmers should complete the Farm Service Agency certification before making a gift of grain commodities, and they are encouraged to consult with their tax professional for advice applicable to their particular situation prior to making a gift of grain commodities.

Investing in the Community Foundation of Johnson County, ensures your wishes extend beyond your lifetime and the lifetime of your heirs . . . For Good . . . For Ever.

Nicole Lynn Richardson

“Nancy and Charles’ generosity and commitment is giving hope and helping others, and honoring their daughter, Nicole.”

SUZANNE LANE CONRAD, RN, M.S., CEO, IOWA DONOR NETWORK

Honoring Nicole

Following the untimely death of daughter Nicole in 2006, Nancy Richardson and husband Charles Krogmeier and Guy Richardson and wife Katie created a lasting legacy in her honor – the Nicole Richardson Memorial Fund through the Community Foundation of Johnson County. Nicole was 27 when she died.

The University of Iowa (B.A., 2001) and University of Oregon School of Law (J.D., 2004) alumna was known as an uncompromising crusader with a passion to provide legal representation for society’s vulnerable populations, especially indigent criminal defendants. Nicole’s drivers license indicated she was an organ donor. In death, Nicole continued her commitment to serve others with the donation of lungs, kidneys, heart, pancreas, liver and corneas, helping improve the lives of seven critically ill patients. Since Nicole’s death, her parents have hosted a charity auction and golf tournament. Proceeds from the annual event support two of Nicole’s passions: helping people in need secure quality legal services and organ and tissue donation.

In 2013, Nicole Richardson Memorial Fund provided the Iowa Donor Network a Kidney Preservation Machine. The machine improves overall kidney performance following a transplant. Studies show kidneys that have been pumped have a reduced percentage of delayed graft function, resulting in shorter hospital stays for recipients and a substantial decrease in serum creatinine levels at time of discharge from the hospital, which signal improved renal function. The machine which continuously pumps kidneys also allows the organs to remain viable for transplant longer (48 hours versus 24 hours).

A longtime family friend received one of Nicole’s kidneys. Nancy says, “Witnessing what Nicole’s compassion meant to our friend, and to be able to sense her living through him and other recipients of her organs, has brought us peace.”

Nicole’s Memorial Fund generously supports the work of the Iowa Donor Network’s organ / tissue donation and transplant services; UI Law School Access to Justice Fund sustaining public law summer internships; the Nicole Richardson Outstanding Pro Bono Service Award Fund, awarded to a law student whose pro bono work has made a significant impact to the community; training efforts for the Iowa Public Defender’s Office; and PAWS, an animal rights and advocacy organization, in recognition of Nicole’s love for her pet Shih Tzu, Riley.

In 2011, Nicole was among 72 organ/tissue donors and recipients honored on the Donate Life Float in the Tournament of Roses Parade. Nancy, who serves on the board of directors for the Community Foundation of Johnson County and Iowa Donor Network, says, “The Nicole Richardson Memorial Fund, like many small charitable efforts, has no staff. Working through the Community Foundation provides administrative support that helps make our fundraising efforts more viable and reliable. We have chosen these two areas to support because we have seen firsthand how lives can be saved and improved through organ / tissue donation and quality legal service for those most vulnerable, but mostly because we want to honor our daughter’s legacy and memory.”

“The Nicole Richardson Memorial Fund has provided generous funding to support a number of organizations and individuals. We are grateful to Nancy and Charles’ vision and service to the community.”

TIM KRUMM, PRESIDENT BOARD OF DIRECTORS,
COMMUNITY FOUNDATION OF JOHNSON COUNTY

[Jayne's] generous gifts supporting the Community Foundation of Johnson County and Mercy Hospice Care are legacies that will provide community support to Johnson County and care for many patients and their loved ones now and in the future.

Legacy Gift Benefits Community Foundation of Johnson County, Mercy Hospice Care

Jaynane “Jayne” Lillig was a “gracious, vibrant, warm and friendly” person, according to her brother, Jim Coffman of Iowa City. She was a world traveler with her late husband Mick, and following his death, she traveled with friends. She and her '63 Corvette were members of the Classy Chassy Cruisers Car Club and she presented the Chris Lillig Memorial Cup to the all-around trophy winner of the Old Capitol Criterium bicycle races held each spring in downtown Iowa City, an award named in memory of her son Chris.

When Jayne was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer she quickly made sure her affairs were in order, including charitable bequests. Jayne wanted to contribute to the Community Foundation of Johnson County, and Mercy Hospital Foundation along with a gift to benefit Mercy Hospice Care.

Jayne's gift created the Lillig Family Community Impact Fund at the Community Foundation of Johnson County. The Community Foundation is grateful for Jayne's gift to the community, said Mike Stoffregen, CFJC Executive Director. “Proceeds from the grant will provide a substantial community impact grant in the next fiscal year.”

Jim said his sister chose to make charitable gifts designating the Community Foundation and Mercy Hospital Foundation as the beneficiary of several IRA's.

Beneficiary designation of all or a portion of an IRA is a simple way to make a gift. Jayne met with her IRA administrator to complete the paperwork, ensuring that her thoughtful intentions would be carried out. Her generous gifts supporting the Community Foundation of Johnson County and Mercy Hospice Care are legacies that will provide community support to Johnson County and care for many patients and their loved ones now and in the future.

Stoffregen says, “In light of her illness, Jayne's gifts to the community truly represent the spirit of giving.”

Leaving a Legacy

How will you be remembered when the time comes? The Community Foundation of Johnson County invites you to invest in our community and have the opportunity to write your own memoir. The Community Foundation is made up of giving people with charitable hearts who value their community. They think of the Community Foundation of Johnson County as an heir and have designated the Community Foundation in their bequest and planned gifts.

Endow Iowa

Endow Iowa, originally part of the Iowa Values Fund, was created to enhance the quality of life for Iowans by encouraging philanthropic activity and new investments in community foundations. Adopted in 2003 by the Iowa Legislature, the bill allows individuals to receive a 25 percent state tax credit, in addition to a normal tax deduction, when they contribute to a Community Foundation endowment fund.

The Community Foundation of Johnson County grows its assets through contributions from many. The Community Foundation helps make a positive local impact by offering a variety of tools to help individuals achieve their charitable goals and do good work in their communities that will last forever. For Good . . . For Ever.

project

“The 1105 Project is an example where the sum is greater than the parts. This kind of collaboration is good for their clients, staff, volunteers and supporters, and ultimately that’s good for Johnson County.”

ROD SULLIVAN, JOHNSON COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Serve Johnson County by growing endowments and distributing funds to build a greater community.
